UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

ADAM RICHARDS et al., No. 2:09-cv-01235 MCE-DAD

Plaintiffs,

v.

MEMORANDUM AND ORDER

COUNTY OF YOLO and YOLO COUNTY
SHERIFF ED PRIETO,

Defendants.

-----oo0oo-----

Plaintiffs Adam Richards, Brett Stewart, the Second Amendment Foundation, Inc., and The Calguns Foundation, Inc. (collectively, "Plaintiffs") seek redress from Sheriff Ed Prieto and the County of Yolo (collectively, "Defendants") after Plaintiffs Richards and Stewart were denied gun permits under Yolo County's, and by extension Sheriff Prieto's, concealed weapon licensing policy.

Both Plaintiffs and Defendants have filed Motions for Summary Judgment. A hearing on the matter was held on March 10, 2011. For the reasons set forth below, Plaintiffs' Motion is denied and Defendants' Motion is granted.

1 Plaintiffs are not challenging the California statute itself², but 2 instead challenge Yolo County's interpretation of their statutory 3 authority, namely its Concealed Weapon License Policy.

4 Consistent with the regulations under California Penal Code, 5 Yolo County and Defendant Prieto, as the Sheriff, have created a 6 policy regulating the issuance of concealed weapon licenses to Yolo 7 County residents. Sheriff Prieto retains "discretion to issue a 8 license to carry a concealed firearm to residents within Yolo 9 County." (See Policy, ECF No. 60-1, at 1.) The policy, accessible 10 to the public, clearly enumerates the criteria for obtaining the 11 license, and an applicant must, among other things, demonstrate 12 that they have a valid reason to request the permit in the first 13 place. (Id.) Examples of valid reasons listed in the policy 14 "include, but are not limited to:" credible threats of violence 15 against the applicant, and being a business owner who carries large 16 sums of cash. (Id. at 1-2.) Examples of invalid reasons include 17 hunting, fishing, or self-defense "without credible threats of 18 violence." (Id. at 2.) The issuance of a license ultimately bears 19 on whether the "Sheriff or his designee feels there is sufficient 20 reason to grant the license." (Id.)

21 ///

23 ² The State of California and/or its legislature is not a party to 24 the action. Plaintiffs appear to be challenging Defendants' 25 exercise of state law at the local level. (See e.g. Sec. Am.
26 Compl., ECF No. 48 (hereinafter, "SAC").) However, Yolo County's 27 policy derives its authority from the legislature's framework, and 28 there is substantial overlap between the policy and California law.
In addition, Plaintiffs' Motion for Summary Judgment specifically challenges portions of California's Penal Code. (ECF No. 54-1 at 21.) Recognizing the close overlap, this Court interprets Plaintiffs' arguments as those ultimately against Defendants, and not the state legislature or, by extension, the California Penal Code.

B. Plaintiffs

Plaintiffs Second Amendment Foundation, Inc. and The Calguns Foundation, Inc. are non-profit organizations designed to promote the rights of firearm holders, and more generally anti-gun control advocates. (SAC 2.) Both Plaintiffs Richards and Stewart are members and supporters of both organizations. (Id. at 1.)

In March 2009, Plaintiff Richards contacted the Yolo County Sheriff's office to inquire about the procedure to obtain a permit to carry a handgun. Defendant was told that he could not obtain a concealed weapon license for self-defense purposes because that would not constitute good cause under the terms of the policy. (Id. at 4.) In addition, since Plaintiff Richards resides in Davis, the Yolo County Sheriff's office informed him that he would first have to apply for a concealed weapon license from the Chief of Police in the City of Davis. (Id.)

Similarly, in March 2010, Plaintiff Stewart applied for a concealed weapon license from Yolo County, after first being told that Davis police had discontinued issuing Carry Concealed Weapon permits. (Id. at 5.) On April 27, 2010, Plaintiff Stewart was informed in writing that he was being denied a permit by Yolo County because his application did not "'meet the criteria'" for granting a license, as outlined in the policy. (Id.)

1 In judging evidence at the summary judgment stage, the court does 2 not make credibility determinations or weigh conflicting evidence.
3 See T.W. Elec. v. Pacific Elec. Contractors Ass'n, 809 F.2d 626, 4 630-631 (9th Cir. 1987) (citing Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co., Ltd.
5 v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 587 (1986)).

7 ANALYSIS

8 A. Second Amendment

9 1. Heller and the Scope of Protection

10 11 Plaintiffs argue that, by maintaining a policy that deprives 12 Plaintiffs Richards and Stewart of a concealed weapon license, 13 Defendants are infringing on their Second Amendment right to bear 14 arms, as the Yolo County license policy effectively acts as a 15 complete ban on an individual's right to carry. They challenge the 16 policy both on its face, and as applied. (See Mot. Summ. J. Hr'g 17 Tr. 9:15-17, March 10, 2011, ECF No. 70.) Defendants, on the other 18 hand, believe that the Second Amendment has never been interpreted 19 as granting citizens the right to carry a concealed weapon in 20 public, and restrictions on firearm possession has been the status 21 quo in the United States for many years. Further, Defendants 22 contend that Yolo County's policy does not violate the Second 23 Amendment, because it is not a total ban on the possession of 24 handguns.

25 ///

26 ///

27 ///

28 ///

1 The Second Amendment protects an individual's right to "keep 2 and bear arms." U.S. Const. amend. II. Rights bestowed under the 3 Second Amendment are "fundamental," and apply "equally to the 4 Federal Government and the States." McDonald v. City of Chicago, 5 130 S. Ct. 3020, 3050 (2010). Specifically, the Second Amendment 6 "protects a personal right to keep and bear arms for lawful 7 purposes, most notably for self-defense in the home." McDonald, 8 130 S. Ct. at 3044. See also United States v. Heller, 554 U.S.
9 570, 635 (2008) ("the District's ban on handgun possession in the 10 home [for self-defense purposes] violates the Second Amendment."); 11 United States v. Vongxay, 594 F.3d 1111, 1115 (9th Cir. 2010) 12 (explaining the scope of Heller was limited to the right to 13 register and keep a loaded firearm in the home for self-defense).

14 However, as the Supreme Court of the United States recently 15 clarified in a landmark case, the "right secured by the Second 16 Amendment is not unlimited. From Blackstone through the 19th-17 century cases, commentators and courts routinely explained that the 18 right was not a right to keep and carry any weapon whatsoever in 19 any manner whatsoever and for whatever purpose." Heller, 554 U.S.
20 at 626. In fact, the Court was careful to explain that their 21 decision did not, in any way, invalidate many of the longstanding 22 state and federal prohibitions on firearm possession.

23 ///

24 ///

25 ///

26 ///

27 ///

28 ///

1 Id. at 627.⁴ Based upon this, Heller cannot be read to invalidate 2 Yolo County's concealed weapon policy, as the Second Amendment does 3 not create a fundamental right to carry a concealed weapon in 4 public.

5 Furthermore, the policy does not create a total ban on 6 carrying a firearm, such that the policy completely infringes on 7 the rights protected by the Second Amendment. Since the Supreme 8 Court has yet to articulate the appropriate standard of review, the 9 Ninth Circuit has determined that only regulations that 10 "substantially burden the right to keep and bear arms trigger 11 heightened scrutiny under the Second Amendment." Nordyke v. King, 12 No. 07-15763, 2011 WL 1632063, at *6 (9th Cir. May 2, 2011) 13 (evaluating whether a restriction on gun sales substantially 14 burdens Second Amendment rights). It then follows that if the 15 regulation does not place a substantial burden to an individual's 16 fundamental right, then rational basis review applies.

17 ///

19 ⁴ Plaintiffs' implicit argument is that Heller stands for the 20 general right to carry a concealed weapon for self-defense purposes 21 in public. (See Hr'g Tr. 23:9-13 ("There is a right to keep and 22 bear arms. Bear arms means to carry them in public.") The 23 Supreme Court does explain that the historical inference of the 24 word "bear" should be interpreted to mean that there is a right to 25 carry "upon the person or in the clothing or in a pocket" a "weapon 26 for a particular purpose - confrontation." Id. at 584-85.
27 However, Heller's ultimate holding is not the Court's 28 interpretation of the historical significance of the Second Amendment's language. To the contrary, the Court, both in Heller, and subsequently in McDonald, took pain-staking effort to clearly enumerate that the scope of Heller extends only to the right to keep a firearm in the home for self-defense purposes. See supra (emphasis added). This Court does not infer that Heller grants any right that "extends beyond the home," as Plaintiffs contended during oral argument. (Hr'g Tr. 11:8-10.) Courts "often limit the scope of their holdings, as such limitations are integral" to understanding the holdings' reach. Vongxay, 594 F.3d at 1115.

1 Id. at *6 (In "a variety of contexts" the Supreme Court "applies 2 mere rational basis scrutiny to laws that regulate, but do not 3 significantly burden, fundamental rights.").⁵

4 In determining whether government action "substantially 5 burdens" a constitutionally-protected right, courts "typically ask 6 whether the restriction leaves open sufficient alternative avenues" 7 for exercising the right. Id. at *7-8. The appropriate inquiry 8 here, under a substantial burden analysis, is whether Yolo County's 9 restrictions leave Plaintiffs with "reasonable alternative means" 10 to obtain and keep a firearm "sufficient for self-defense 11 purposes." Id. at *7.

12 California Penal Code has carved out a number of exceptions 13 that allow individuals to possess and carry loaded firearms in 14 public settings, including for use in hunting, or in a situation 15 where someone who believes they are in "immediate, grave, danger 16 and that the carrying of the weapon is necessary for the 17 preservation of that person or property." Penal Code 18 § 12031(j)(1).⁶

19 _____ 20 ⁵ In their Summary Judgment Motion, Plaintiffs interpret Heller to 21 mean that rational basis review could not, under any circumstances, 22 be used to evaluate the merits of a policy regulating portions of 23 the Second Amendment. (ECF No. 54-1 at 26.) Indeed, the Ninth 24 Circuit previously interpreted Heller the same way; namely that 25 rational-basis scrutiny would not be appropriate to review Second 26 Amendment restrictions. See Vongxay, 594 F.3d at 1118 n.5.
27 However, earlier this month, the Ninth Circuit read Heller as 28 "insisting that a Second Amendment backed only by rational basis review would have 'no effect,'" and heightened scrutiny is only appropriate for claims that substantially burden the right to bear and keep arms. Nordyke, 2011 WL 1632063, at *10 (citing Heller, 554 U.S. at 627 n.27) (emphasis added).

⁶ Immediate is defined as "the brief interval before and after the local law enforcement agency, when reasonably possible, has been notified of the danger and before the arrival of its assistance."
Id.

1 A regulation or policy "does not substantially burden a 2 constitutional right simply because it makes the right...more 3 difficult to exercise." Nordyke, 2011 WL 1632063, at *8.

4 Under the statutory scheme, even if Plaintiffs are denied a 5 concealed weapon license for self-defense purposes from Yolo 6 County, they are still more than free to keep an unloaded weapon 7 nearby their person, load it, and use it for self-defense in 8 circumstances that may occur in a public setting. Yolo County's 9 policy does not substantially burden Plaintiffs' right to bear and 10 keep arms. Therefore, rational basis review applies.

11 A regulation is constitutional under rational basis review if 12 it bears "a reasonable relationship to a legitimate government 13 interest." United States v. Whitlock, 2011 WL 1651232, at *5 (9th 14 Cir. April 28, 2011) (citing United States v. LeMay, 260 F.3d 1018, 15 1031 (9th Cir. 2001)). As Defendants contend, regulating concealed 16 firearms is an essential part of Yolo County's efforts to maintain 17 public safety and prevent both gun-related crime and, most 18 importantly, the death of its citizens. Yolo County's policy is 19 more than rationally related to these legitimate government goals, 20 and Plaintiffs' Motion for Summary Judgment fails as to this 21 portion of their argument.

25 ///

26 ///

27 ///

28 ///

1 2. Defendants' "Good Cause" Discretion

3 Plaintiffs also assert that the portions of Yolo County's 4 concealed weapon license policy evaluating an applicant's good 5 moral character and good cause for seeking a permit, gives the 6 government "unbridled discretion" in violation of the Second 7 Amendment. In applying traditional First Amendment analysis, 8 Plaintiffs contend the statute is a prior restraint on the freedom 9 to keep and bear arms. Defendants, in turn, believe any analogy of 10 the Second Amendment to the First is improper because it "ignores 11 the fundamental difference between regulation of speech and guns."
12 (Def's. Mot. for Summ. J. 24, ECF No. 59.)

13 In a facial challenge⁷ to a statute outside of the First 14 Amendment context, a plaintiff must demonstrate that "no set of 15 circumstances exists under which" the statute would be valid, "i.e.
16 that the law is unconstitutional in all of its applications."
17 Wash. State Grange v. Wash. State Republican Party, 552 U.S. 442, 18 450 (2008). See also Hotel & Motel Ass'n. of Oakland v. City of 19 Oakland, 344 F.3d 959, 971 (9th Cir. 2003) ("To bring a successful 20 facial challenge outside the context of the First Amendment, the 21 challenger must establish that no set of circumstances exists under 22 which the statute would be valid." (internal citations omitted)); 23 Nordyke, 2011 WL 1632063, at *7 n.11 ("A facial challenge" is "the 24 most difficult challenge to mount successfully.").

25
26 ⁷ Plaintiffs characterized this portion of their argument as a 27 "facial challenge" during oral argument, and the pleadings support 28 such an interpretation. (See Hr'g Tr. 9:15-10:8) An as-applied constitutional challenge to Yolo County's policy was not asserted under the analogous First Amendment analysis.

1 Courts are instructed to first determine whether "the 2 enactment reaches a substantial amount of constitutionally 3 protected conduct" by examining "the ambiguous as well as the 4 unambiguous scope of the enactment." Village of Hoffman Estates v.
5 Flipside, Hoffman Estates, Inc., 455 U.S. 489, 494 & n.6 (1982).
6 Such an inquiry must be "examined in the light of the facts of the 7 case at hand," which should ultimately demonstrate that the 8 regulation is patently invalid because "no standard of conduct is 9 specified at all." Id. at 495 n.7 (internal citations omitted).

10 An exception to the rigidity of the facial challenge test 11 exists for issues involving the First Amendment. A law involving 12 First Amendment protections "may be overturned as impermissibly 13 broad because a substantial number of its applications are 14 unconstitutional, judged in relation to the statute's plainly 15 legitimate sweep." Wash. State Grange, 552 U.S. at 449 n.6 16 (internal citations omitted). Plaintiffs suggest the Court turn to 17 case precedent established from examining the rights and 18 regulations carved from the First Amendment as a framework for 19 assessing those rights indicated under the Second Amendment.
20 However, Plaintiffs do not address the exception in their papers, 21 but cite cases entrenched in First Amendment constitutional 22 analysis. The Court sees no reason to analogize rights under the 23 Second Amendment to those under the First, as plenty of case 24 authority exists to provide a clear framework of analysis to facial 25 challenges, without poaching precedent from another Amendment's 26 framework.

27 ///

28 ///

1 Therefore, this Court cannot invalidate the good cause and 2 good moral character portions of Yolo County's policy as 3 unconstitutional on their face. Plaintiffs cannot demonstrate that 4 there are zero circumstances under which Sheriff Prieto could 5 clearly issue a concealed weapon permit to someone who demonstrates 6 plausible good cause under the terms of the policy, and is also of 7 objective good moral character. Any inquiry into the facial 8 constitutionality of Yolo County's policy is futile, for it is both 9 "undesirable" and near impossible for the Court to "consider every 10 conceivable situation which might possibly arise in the application 11 of complex and comprehensive legislation." Gonzales v. Carhart, 12 550 U.S. 124, 168 (2007) (internal citations omitted); Nordyke, 13 2011 WL 1632063 at *7. Facial challenges are also disfavored for 14 many reasons, most notably because they "rest on speculation."
15 Wash. State Grange, 552 U.S. at 450.

16 Moreover, Yolo County's policy does contain a standard of 17 conduct; applicants are clearly instructed to be of good moral 18 character (and submit application documents corroborating such 19 character), and demonstrate good cause for requiring the license.
20 The policy goes further by providing examples of the types of good 21 cause that satisfy the terms of the policy. While Plaintiffs are 22 entitled to dislike the qualifications and standards created by 23 Sheriff Prieto and Yolo County's policy, they cannot demonstrate 24 that the policy itself is void for facial vagueness. For each of 25 the above reasons, Plaintiffs' Motion for Summary Judgment on the 26 Second Amendment claim fails and Defendants' Motion for Summary 27 Judgment is granted.

28 ///

1 B. Equal Protection

3 Plaintiffs insist that Yolo County's concealed weapon license 4 policy is subjective because Sheriff Prieto has discretionary 5 authority to determine what constitutes "good cause." Plaintiffs 6 also believe the policy is arbitrary and violates Equal Protection 7 because some individuals are granted the right to bear arms for 8 self-defense, while others are not. Defendants maintain that Yolo 9 County's interest in preventing crime and ensuring public safety 10 merits the policy's language and renders it constitutional.

11 The Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment 12 requires that all "persons similarly situated" be treated the same 13 under the law. City of Cleburne v. Cleburne Living Center, Inc., 14 473 U.S. 432, 439 (1985); Freeman v. City of Santa Ana, 68 F.3d 15 1180, 1187 (1995). Modern equal protection analysis is a two step 16 process: the first step is identifying the classification of 17 groups, namely that a law is "applied in a discriminatory manner or 18 imposes different burdens on different classes of people." Id.

19 The second step requires the court to "assess the legitimacy 20 of a discriminatory statute under the appropriate level of 21 scrutiny." Sagana v. Tenorio, 384 F.3d 731, 740 (9th Cir. 2004).

22 ///
23 ///
24 ///
25 ///
26 ///
27 ///
28 ///

1 Where an ordinance does not "purposefully operate to the detriment 2 of a suspect class, the only requirement of equal protection is 3 that the ordinance be rationally related to a legitimate 4 governmental interest. Nordyke, 2011 WL 1632063, at *14 (internal 5 citations omitted).⁸

6 Plaintiffs' equal protection claim fails for two reasons.
7 First, the policy does not treat similarly situated individuals 8 differently. All law-abiding citizens who apply for a permit are 9 not the same because some can demonstrate they have good cause and 10 are of good moral character, and some cannot. Second, Defendants' 11 good cause and good character clauses in the policy are clearly 12 rationally related to Yolo County's goals of reducing the incidence 13 of unlawful public shootings, prevent police from safely responding 14 to dangerous situations, generally preventing crime, and ensuring 15 public safety.

16 17 CONCLUSION

18
19 Compared to many of this country's constitutional protections, 20 the scope of rights under the Second Amendment is ambiguous and no 21 doubt subject to change and evolution over time. Nonetheless, even 22 in light of Heller and McDonald, Yolo County's concealed license 23 policy is constitutionally valid.

24
25 ⁸ Though the right to keep and bear arms for self-defense is a 26 fundamental right, "that right is more appropriately analyzed under 27 the Second Amendment. Id. (citing Albright v. Oliver, 510 U.S.
28 266, 273 (1994) ("Where a particular amendment provides an explicit textual source of constitutional protection against a particular sort of government behavior, that Amendment, not the more generalized notion of substantive due process, must be the guide for analyzing those claims." (internal citations omitted))).

1 Plaintiffs' Motion for Summary Judgment (ECF No. 54) is DENIED.
2 Defendants' Cross Motion for Summary Judgment (ECF No. 58) is 3 GRANTED. The Clerk of Court is accordingly directed to enter 4 judgment in favor of Defendants Yolo County and Yolo County Sheriff 5 Ed Prieto.

6 IT IS SO ORDERED.
